MAUI HAPPENINGS.

On the night of the 6th inst. a Chinese storekeeper of Paia, accompanied by a Japanese friend, were riding at full tilt along the road of Camp 1, Spreckelsville. Their little moonlight spin came to a sudden and fatal ending by reason of a horse carelessly tethered to a fence bordering the roadside, the rope stretching across the road. Both horses and riders turned somersaults; the Chinaman was killed, and his friend somewhat injured. The bills of that Paia firm must find some other collector. If there is no law to stop such offenses as this, a law should be enacted.

Weather warm, and the sun shining brightly.

A JAPANESE TEA.

On the evening of the 13th inst. the Japanese tea given under the auspices of the Makawao Ladies' Aid Society took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. Laws, Paia. Delightful moonlight and fine roads attracted the attendance of a large proportion of Maui's four hundred. Each guest, on arrival, dazzled by lights in all the hues of the solar spectrum, was greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Laws dressed in Japanese costume, who saluted a la Japanese and smiled "Yokohama smiles." The "conversations" in progress for the first hour or two was confined chiefly to "ohalo," "hai," etc.

It would tax the pen of an Oscar Wilde to do justice to the beauty of the interior decorations. The spacious verandas were walled in with canvas, and the blending of ferns, palms, bamboos, flags, Japanese fans, mats, umbrellas, lanterns, etc., and other Oriental bric-a-brac was most exquisite, and formed a fitting setting for the eastern costumes of the young men and maidens in attendance.

Misses Gregory, May Baldwin, Hammond, Maud Baldwin, Beckwith, and Gertrude Stiles, dressed as fair maids of Tokio, exchanged tea, and dainty cups as well for silver at their tables and the palms and bamboos, while Mesdames Baldwin, Gulick and Loveland presided at the bazaar. Mrs. Alexander, accompanied by a stalwart cavalier, used mild "athletic" means to procure victims to gaze at her bean-bottle and guess, while Miss Nott, in an "aesthetic" way, disposed of her posies.

The "tea" was not only a success artistically and as a social function, but also financially. There will be little difficulty in removing the debt incurred by repairs on the church organ. Thanks are due to Mr. Bergstrom and the piano, Mr. Gilhus and his violin, and Mr. Lockwood and his banjo.

During the week, Mr. and Mrs. Martinson, of Kahului, have issued cards of invitation to the wedding reception of their daughter Lena and E. B. Carley, at their residence, on Saturday evening, November 21st, at 8 o'clock. A large number of guests will no doubt assemble, as Superintendent Carley has numerous friends.

Snow Cottage Sold.

Jas. F. Morgan's auction room was thronged with people Saturday at noon time. Some were there to see who would buy the Snow Cottage and others to do the bidding. The principal bidders were S. M. Damon, F. W. Macfarlane, W. C. Peacock, Dr. J. S. McGraw and E. S. Cunha. The bidding started in a very lively manner. Messrs. Peacock, Macfarlane and Dr. McGraw sending the price up into the thousands, then E. S. Cunha took a hand in the bidding, and kept on offering more and more until the price reached $8000, when Auctioneer Morgan knocked it down to him. Seldom at an auction sale would one see such spirited rivalry to secure a house and lot, but in this instance there was no doubt of the Snow property being a solid investment, hence the anxiety of prominent people to secure it. The sale of lots adjoining Mr. Ena's residence at Waikiki did not create very much interest. One lot was put up and sold to P. Mulendro for $1000; there being no special demand for the balance, Mr. Morgan withdrew them, and will probably dispose of them at private sale.

THE ST. GEORGE ARRIVES.

The Finest English Yacht Afloat.

The British Steam Yacht St. George, with the flag of the Royal Yacht Squadron flying at her peak, steamed into the harbor Saturday night after a voyage of about fifteen days from San Francisco.

A reporter of the ADVERTISER paid a visit to the yacht at her anchorage, and was courteously received by the owner, Mr. E. J. Wythes. A short description of this handsome vessel was printed exclusively in the ADVERTISER the other day, but a little more will be of interest.

The St. George is without doubt the handsomest yacht that has ever entered this harbor. She is barkentine rigged and is much faster with wind than with steam power, being able to make thirteen knots with sail and only eleven with steam. While under sail her propeller is feathered, so, instead of it being necessary to raise it out of water when under sail, the two blades are turned back together, making a continuation of her propeller shaft. Her engines are 1500 horse power. She is 200 feet long, 32 feet beam, and has a draft of 18 feet with a tonnage of 1000. Her appointments are elegant throughout, every convenience is there for the comfort and pleasure of her owner and his guests. The cabin and state rooms (of the latter there are seven) are palatial in their furnishings. The sleeping apartments have swinging beds, which prevents rolling with the swing of the yacht when under way at sea. The vessel is lighted with electricity and carries a large search light forward.

The yacht carries a crew of forty-seven men all told. The officers are Captain Tutton; first officer, G. Cobby; second officer, A. C. Rood; engineer, C. Westwood; first assistant, W. Brazier; second assistant, J. Westwood; and steward, A. Evans.

The yacht will remain here about ten days and will then go to Hilo, where her owner, Mr. E. J. Wythes, and his guests, Mr. Walker, John Langley, W. P. Blomcoe, Captain A. Smydke, of the British army, and Dr. Tyfe will take in the Volcano. She will then go further south to cruise among the islands of the South Pacific and visit New Zealand and Australia. Continuing, she will turn her bow for Cape Horn, and after visiting the principal cities of South America she will start for England, where it is expected she will arrive about July next.

THE GEO. H. DOUGLASS.

A Vessel Given Up As Lost Reappears.

The brigantine Geo. H. Douglass, Captain E. D. Reid, arrived in port on Thursday morning, November 12, nearly 38 days from Butaritari, Gilbert Group. It may be remembered that Captain J. B. Holland, her former master, passed through this port on the steamship Monowai about one month ago, on his way to the Coast, and from him the news was then learned of the total loss of the Douglass at Butaritari. Indeed Captain Holland thought from the dangerous position in which his vessel was in then that she would gradually go to pieces, and that he was powerless to do anything to save the vessel. He left Butaritari never dreaming that skilled laborers could be found there who could devise means of floating the Douglass again. The wreck was sold to a private party, who in turn sold it to Captain Reid and others. The present owners had the Douglass floated and beached on a sand bank, where she was patched up by the carpenters. The better part of last month the left Butaritari for Honolulu, arriving here as stated.

The Douglass will go on the Marine Railway to be repaired. The crew stated that she did not make much water on the voyage up. It was a matter of very great surprise to Honolulu people to again behold the Douglass, as they had concluded, from information received, that she was broken up for firewood. The news of her safe arrival in Honolulu harbor will be known in San Francisco on Wednesday. The captain is accompanied with his wife, who was formerly Miss Maggie Greig, daughter of Mr. Greig of Fanning's Island, and sister of Mr. W. H. C. Greig of this city. The children of Rev. Mr. Kanoa, of Butaritari, are also on board; Keeki, a native who left this port ten years ago in the schooner Kaluna, which was wrecked on one of the islands of the group, is a sailor on board the Douglass. He comes only to look at his native country, and will return by the Douglass to Butaritari. Captain Reid will place his vessel again under the Hawaiian flag.

Correcting Moreno's Slanders.

In a published interview with Mr. J. J. Egan of this city, by the Detroit Free Press, the following statement by Mr. Egan is made:

"With every mail we get your paper down there, and, while it is universally liked, we are particularly interested in its contents because it tells us all about Michigan affairs, as well as that of the entire country. Your papers are wrong in one thing, however, and that is in representing a troubled state of affairs on our island. The queen may be threatened because of disease, but that need lead to no disturbance. She is, I am inclined to think, a better statesman than was Kalakaua. Certainly she is more circumspect and not so much of a spendthrift. Should she die the princess would naturally succeed, but her father is an Englishman. She has been educated after the English methods, and because of this fact some feeling has developed against her. But it will scarcely assert itself to the extent of an open revolt, and even in such an event the succession would pass to some relative of the late king. We have a liberal government, a climate that varies but five degrees in a year, a prolific soil, all modern improvements, and live as comfortably as the best. We have a slight majority of Americans on the island and I hope some time to be under Uncle Sam's wing."

THE MARTHA DAVIS.

Report of Voyage From Boston to Honolulu.

The American bark Martha Davis, Captain Pendleton, was docked at Brewer's wharf on Saturday morning, November 14th, 144 days from Boston, with 1000 tons cargo for Honolulu, including 4000 cases kerosene oil, and about 500 tons freight, among which are 8000 cases kerosene oil, in transit for Hongkong.

Sailed from Boston June 24th. Experienced favorable weather all the way till within the meridian of Cape Horn. The equator in the Atlantic was crossed on the 32d day out, and on the 67th day out arrived off Cape Horn. From thence to lat. 50 deg. S., in the Pacific, experienced very severe northerly and north-westerly gales and heavy seas, the ship laboring heavily. The sea stove in the bow and carried away the booby-hatch, at the same time filling half the deck and cabin with water. "After a storm there's always a calm," so from thence to the equator in the Pacific, had variable moderate winds with a little S. E. trades. Then a calm set in. The Martha Davis was at a point 250 miles east of Oahu during the past week.

On August 23d, spoke the American ship Snow and Burgess, seventy-seven days out from New York for San Francisco. Position: Latitude, 45 deg. 11 min. N., and Longitude, 62 deg. 50 min. W.

The Martha Davis is expected to leave for Hongkong on the 1st of December. The damage sustained on the voyage to this port will be repaired here.
